TARGET AUDIENCE

Emergency Medicine, Family Medicine, Internal Medicine, Pediatrics, Physical Medicine and Rehab, Sports Medicine and Sports Administration. This program is applicable to physicians, residents, fellows, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, nurse occupational therapists, physical therapists, speech and language specialists, athletic trainers, athletic directors, coaches and sport program administrators.

OVERVIEW

Concussion symptoms can be subtle and difficult to manage. This program will help first responders and clinicians properly identify and clinically treat the complicated diagnosis of concussion. Specific case studies and treatment approaches will provide methods that help the concussed student athlete return to learn and return to play as quickly as possible. This educational program is geared towards those responsible for the identification and treatment of concussion and the safe return to learn and return to play of student athletes and include primary care physicians, emergency medicine physicians, physical medicine and rehabilitation physicians, sports medicine, neurologists, PAs, NPs, nurses, athletic trainers, physical therapists, speech and language specialists and coaches and sport program administrators.
